THE RABBI SPEAKS

RABBI BARRY BLOCK

Dear Friends:

I was raised with the firm conviction that Jews are not a race. Judaism is a religion—or, in the words of Rabbi Mordecai Kaplan, a civilization. Jews value peoplehood—that is, our kinship with our fellow Jews around the world and across all time. We share certain traits like an ethnic group would, even though our people includes several ethnic groups. The fact that one can convert to Judaism is the strongest evidence that Judaism is not, and never has been, a race.

After Whoopi Goldberg was suspended from The View for insisting that the Holocaust was not a matter of racism, an understandably confused congregant reached out to me. Wasn't Goldberg correct? We are not, in fact, a race!

I was not especially bothered by what Goldberg said on The View. One would be hard-pressed to find Holocaust-denying or antisemitic intent. After all, the conversation arose in response to McMinn County, Tennessee's banning the important Holocaust graphic novel Maus from its curriculum. Moreover, the next day, The View featured ADL Executive Director Jonathan Greenblatt as a guest, and he explained the complexity of talking about the Holocaust and race. Goldberg took full responsibility for what she had gotten wrong; and she apologized, not only that people were upset, but for what she had said.

Leaving aside the fact that not all Jews are white, the critical piece that Goldberg missed is that, for the Nazis, Jews were not of the same race as so-called Aryans.

In between those two episodes of The View, though, Goldberg appeared on The Late Show with Stephen Colbert. There, she referred to both the Nazis and the Jews they sought to exterminate as “white people.”

No, Jews are not a race. However, those who define us as a race do so because they seek to exclude us from their own race—and, in the case of the Nazis, from humanity. We are not a race, but racism has been used to persecute us, even to slaughter us by the millions. We are right both to continue to insist that we are not a race and to acknowledge—and, to ask others to acknowledge, as Goldberg ultimately did—that we have been and can be the victims of racism.

Faithfully,

Rabbi Barry H. Block

FROM THE PRESIDENT, AMANDA ORGEL

Dear friends,

I am so happy that we have returned to in-person worship here at Temple. Seeing fellow congregants, in person, and being able to interact with you face to face has been so nice. If you haven't yet joined us in person, please make a plan to do so soon, and please remember to submit your proof of vaccine (including booster shot for those eligible) to the Temple office so we can keep it on file and speed the check-in process when you come in the building.

Our first in-person event was the Bat Mitzvah of Mira Krain. What a great way to kick off our re-gathering, with one of our young adults leading us in worship. Mazel Tov to Mira and her family!

Security has, of course, been on all of our minds. Our security committee, chaired by Carol Parham, has been meeting to discuss improvements to the building that may help us, training for staff and for congregants, and so much more. Thanks to everyone on this committee working to help us stay safe as we gather together.

This month, we also say goodbye to Milton Boyd, who has been at Temple many years. Milton's service to the congregation will be honored at a party on April 3, 5-7pm. I hope you will all join me in thanking Milton for the time he spent in with us, and his contributions to Temple life. If you would like to be included in the gift to Milton upon his retirement, please send a check clearly marked for Milton to the Temple office.

In anticipation of Milton's retirement, we have hired a new facilities manager, Christopher Williams. Christopher's good nature and positive attitude, along with his extensive abilities in facilities management, will make him a great fit for us. Please be sure and stop by and introduce yourself to Christopher when you are in the building.

Best, Amanda

FROM EILEEN HAMILTON, ADMINISTRATOR

“No one has ever become poor from giving” – Anne Frank

The new word ‘volun-told’ replaced the old ‘volunteer’ - People coercing others into doing something. One time someone asked me what I would do if I didn’t work, and I replied, probably be someone’s best volunteer. I mean what else would I do all day? Through volunteering one can gain great skills, gain confidence, make a difference, meet people and be part of a community, take on a challenge, have fun, be a leader, and most importantly, be a problem solver.

At B’nai Israel, there are a ton of great volunteers. Some of them have done the same volunteering for many, many years, while others are just getting started. They are both great places to be. As we reopen the building to all the usual programs and some new ones too, consider carving out a little time to be one of those volunteers. From board members, committee chairs, security team, kitchen and dinner assistants, religious school teachers and subs, and even behind the scenes office assistants, your Temple needs you. The Temple has a small staff and without the energy of volunteers, big and small things get put on ‘future’ lists.

There is more to volunteering than just taking the weight off the shoulders of others; there is a lot of self-satisfaction involved. Volunteering allows us to role model for the next generation of Temple members, our future, and show that the Temple is an important part and place for you, your family, and community.

Below are some general volunteer needs at Temple (this list is not exhaustive). Look and see if you can see yourself getting involved as a volunteer. You’ll be glad you did.
