THE RABBI SPEAKS

RABBI BARRY BLOCK

Dear Friends,

I write in the afterglow of extraordinary, fun, and meaningful Purim celebrations, but we will be preparing for Passover as this Chronicle reaches you. With that calendar in mind, I would like to introduce you to an observation articulated by my teacher Yossi Klein Halevi: Some of us, he writes, are “Purim Jews,” while others are “Passover Jews.” It’s worth quoting Halevi at length:

“Jewish history speaks to our generation in the voice of two biblical commands to remember. The first voice commands us to remember that we were strangers in the land of Egypt, and the message of that command is: ‘Don’t be brutal.’ The second voice commands us to remember how the tribe of Amalek attacked us without provocation while we were wandering in the desert, and the message of that command is: ‘Don’t be naive.’

“The first command is the voice of Passover, of liberation; the second is the voice of Purim, commemorating our victory over the genocidal threat of Haman, a descendant of Amalek.

“‘Passover Jews’ are motivated by empathy with the oppressed; ‘Purim Jews’ are motivated by alertness to threat.

“Both are essential; one without the other creates an unbalanced Jewish personality, a distortion of Jewish history and values.”

Recently, the Confirmation class and I studied Halevi's words and supporting texts from Torah and our rabbinic sages. Only a decade ago, virtually any Reform Jewish teen would have insisted that our central obligation is to be "Passover Jews." The obligation of tikkun olam, repairing the world, reminds us of the reason that we are Jewish.

Now, though, our teens are increasingly aware of antisemitism. While some face antisemitism personally, they know that many others, in America and around the world, confront severe discrimination and persecution as Jews. They agree with Halevi, as do I: In 2025, we must be both "Purim Jews" and "Passover Jews."

Recently, our Arkansas General Assembly considered legislation to combat antisemitism, and for that we should be grateful. However, I have two concerns, one that I expressed to the general public. The other is one that shared with you in my Kol Nidre sermon half a year ago.

1. Even with the uptick in antisemitism in 2025, many Arkansans face discrimination and repression on account of their identities—not only Jews, but Black Arkansans and other people of color, gay men, lesbians, trans and nonbinary people, and immigrants, including law abiding folks who are in this country legally. In a legislative session that did anything but make life easier for these Arkansans, the singular focus on antisemitism is problematic. This is an obligation for all "Passover Jews."
2. The governments of the United States and Arkansas are increasingly identifying and combating antisemitism only when it comes from the extreme left, not the equally terrifying antisemitism coming from the extreme right. Those of us who vote "blue" have a particular obligation to fight antisemitism on the extreme left. Those who vote "red" have an equal duty with regard to antisemitism on the extreme right. All "Purim Jews" must be alert to these threats and respond to them. Our congregation celebrates the Jews of Color, LGBTQ Jews, and immigrants in our midst; being a "Purim Jew" means not being naïve about the oppression that any Jew faces, whether it's on account of antisemitism or another form of hate.

In a better world, a better America, and a better Arkansas, we would all be "Passover Jews." We do not have that luxury as we move from Purim to Passover in 5785/2025.

Faithfully,

SATURDAY MORNINGS IN APRIL

Adult Learning at Congregation B'nai Israel presents...

Rabbi Marc Katz

Author of Yochanan's Cradle

Some two thousand years ago, the story goes, a rabbi named Yochanan makes the epitome of pragmatic gambles—wagering the entire fate of the Jewish people. His quick thinking inspired generations of sobriquet rabbis to navigate their own ethical challenges pragmatically—determining truth, upholding compromise, convincing others, keeping peace with neighbors, avoiding infighting, weighing sinning in hopes of promoting a greater good.

In his book, Yochanan's Gamble, Rabbi Katz lays out a new Jewish path forward for resolving moral conundrums in our day and breaking the deadlock that exists in our broken political discourse.

Rabbi Marc Katz serves Temple Ner Tamid in Bloomfield, New Jersey and is Adjunct Professor of Talmud at Hebrew Union College in New York. His earlier book, The Heart of Loneliness: How Jewish Wisdom Can Help You Cope and Find Comfort, was a finalist for the National Jewish Book Award. He also wrote a chapter in The Mussar Torah Commentary, edited by Rabbi Block.

Both services will be held in the Library and will also be available via Zoom with the Meeting Owl.

Thank you, Lane Boyd!

In February 2024, Lane Boyd joined our Temple staff as our part time Administrative Assistant. From day one, Lane has been dedicated to his work and exceeded every expectation. Lane would soon become our Administrative Assistant and our Facilities Manager.

Since October 2024, Lane has been the only fulltime Temple employee other than Rabbi Block. He has partnered with Rabbi, Temple leaders, volunteers, and part time staff, to assure excellent administration and service to our congregation in every area.

From the day that Lane joined our staff, he let us know that he would not be working at Temple long-term. He had studied computer science in college, and he was always looking toward a career in that field. His IT skills have been a tremendous asset to our operations.

Now, Lane has begun a full time position with One80 Intermediaries, and we are thrilled for him to have this opportunity.

While we will miss working with Lane as a staff member, Lane is a Temple member. In addition to attending Temple services and programs, Lane looks forward to joining the ranks of our Temple volunteers.

Welcome New Operations Manager Michael Roberts!

Michael Roberts has joined our Temple staff as Operations Manager. Michael's duties will include oversight of our Religious School, alongside facilities management and a variety of administrative tasks.

Michael comes to us from Target, where he was a team leader, having previously been an editor, writer, and critic at the Arkansas Times. He also has a background in education.

Michael, too, is a Temple member, so he knows us pretty well already, and many Temple members know him. As a lifelong Arkansan whose father and late grandfather were preachers, he has inside knowledge of congregational life.

Fun fact about Michael: He lives in a small complex of seven apartments, and three of them are occupied by Temple members!

From Lewis Krain, President

I'd like to take this month's column to fill you in on the new staffing in the CBI office. We're trying something new; we've split the position of Director of Administration, Education, and Youth Engagement into two new positions: Operations Manager and Member Services Manager. The hope is that we will be dividing a single job that could be overwhelming and time intensive, especially on off hours, into two more manageable positions.

Michael Roberts is our new Operations Manager. This role encompasses various aspects of facility maintenance and general administration, stewarding the physical and IT infrastructure of the Temple. He'll also coordinate with the Board of Trustees Treasurer and our Bookkeeper to manage day-to-day aspects of financial operations such as billing and accounts payable. In addition, Michael will manage operations of the religious school such as enrollment, scheduling, purchasing supplies, and implementing events and curriculum. Curriculum planning and design will remain a task handled by the Rabbi in conjunction with the Religious School Committee, currently led by Alex Daniel.

We're excited to introduce Luke Frauenthal as our new Member Services Manager. This role tackles most of the public-facing aspects of CBI administration. This includes program planning, fundraising, rental contracting, and volunteer management. In addition, he'll have administrative tasks of maintaining the membership database, assisting with correspondence, and maintaining the cemetery database.

In addition, both of these roles will cross-train to cover the other to ensure that we are not struggling to maintain operations during times of vacation, illness, or other absences. The Executive Committee is hoping this will put the congregation on a footing of increased stability and coverage moving forward. Credit for the design of this model goes to Shelly Barron, who is currently heroically filling the roles of both Administrative and Executive Vice President, and I want to stress the number of hours that she's put into designing, recruiting, and filling these roles.

If you have any trouble remembering the breakdown of these two positions, don't worry... we're all learning the new ropes together. The most important thing is that everyone take the time to welcome and get to know Michael and Luke as you see them over the next few months, and that you give them a chance to show you how great they can be in their new roles.

Congregation B'nai Israel - Vogel Caring and Sharing Pesach Luncheon

Please join us on Saturday, April 19 following morning services for our Vogel Caring and Sharing Pesach Luncheon.

Please RSVP to the Temple Office at templeadministrator@bnai-israel.us or 501.225.9700

This event is hosted by the Caring and Sharing Committee and made possible by a generous grant from the Vogel Caring and Sharing Fund.

Caregivers and drivers are welcome as well.

What a Wicked night at the Congregation B'nai Israel Purim Shpiel!

March at Congregation B'nai Israel Religious School!

As I took a seat in the sanctuary for my first day of religious school at B'nai Israel, Rabbi Block was asking the kids a question: "Why do we sing Shabbat songs on Purim? It's a Sunday!"

"Because we're weird!" came one answer, accompanied by a round of laughter.

"NO!" said the Rabbi. "It's because on Purim, things are ALL MIXED UP!"

I felt that to the very center of my being, because let me tell you, starting a new job at the Temple has been a case of being all mixed up over and over. But it's been a blast getting to know new faces, reestablishing relationships with people I already knew, and learning the ins and outs of all the moving parts that keep our Temple functioning.

I could not be more honored to be a part of this community, first as a brand-new Jew-by-choice in 2020, then as a member, and now as part of Temple staff. And as I get to know our religious school faculty and students more, I can't express how excited I am to be here with you all.

I'd like to take a moment to offer my deepest thanks and appreciation for outgoing Administrative Assistant and Facilities Manager, Lane Boyd. Lane has been instrumental in helping me transition into this role, and I couldn't be happier he is pursuing a job in his field – not to mention that he will be able to attend services again as a layperson! A list of thanks to everyone else who deserves them would take up more space than I have, so let me end this by saying: thank you for this opportunity, Congregation B'nai Israel. Even if I sometimes get all mixed up!

Operations Manager
